Your Top 5 Strengths Are:

Teamwork (88%):

- * You organize your life around your close relationships and should keep them in planning exercises.
- * Don't move around too much - you enjoy close, strong, genuine bonds and could be shaken up otherwise.
- * Knowing people's goals helps you bond with them - seek to find out more about the people you meet.
- * You are loyal, place a high value on trust, and will not betray people - be the person people can come to.

- * Build genuine trusting relationships with critical people you want around.
- * Generosity is a strength - be aware, get noticed, and keep it up.

Salesmanship (88%):

- * Make it a point to meet new people every day - strangers energize you.
- * Be the initial point of contact for groups, organizations, and teams.
- * Continually work on your system for remembering names and faces.
- * You prefer to meet, win over, and move on - stick to broad relationships in work. Quantity not quality.
- * Be careful that your salesmanship doesn't cloud the vision of others - too much influence can be dangerous.
- * Consistently be a builder of goodwill for your groups, community, or organization.

Ambition (88%):

- * Maintain your focus on improving working things and not fixing the broken things.
- * Avoid roles that require continual problem solving.
- * You get frustrated focusing on your weaknesses for too long - try to minimize this.
- * You dislike career paths that trade money for veering off your strengths path - avoid them.
- * Seek to lead a task force to investigate company best practices.
- * Participate in or design a program for measuring and celebrating employee productivity.

Faith (81%):

- * Make efforts to discover your true passion and tie it to your work, no matter what you do.
- * Align, but don't compromise, your values to that of your organization.
- * You respect others for learning about your family and community - give them the opportunity.
- * You give more value to greater levels of service than more money - let others know this.
- * People may not share your beliefs, but you feel they need to understand & respect - let them.

Innovation (81%):

- * Actively seek out positions where your ideas will be valued and encouraged.
- * Be a designer, sales strategies, marketing guru, or customer service rep for new products and ideas.
- * Search out and request ideas from others to stimulate your thinking.
- * Constantly think of ideas that can improve businesses and the lives of others.
- * You enjoy the power of words; punchy ideas stimulate your thinking - focus and play with this fact.
- * For decisions, you need to know that everything fits together. Be aware and plan for decisions.
- * If a decision seems to stand out as particularly bothersome, then check if it is an exception before worrying about it.

Your Bottom 1

Weakness Is:

Focus (6%):

- * Actively set goals with specific timelines and figure out concrete ways to achieve them.
- * You work best when you can control your work events - be aware and keep others informed.
- * You thrive on regular check-ins and discussing goals progress - help others to understand this.
- * Make efforts to avoid trampling on others' feelings as goals often take priority for you.
- * Change is tough for you - ensure you talk and plan for change in terms of 'new goals to champion'.
- * Schedule to attend a time management seminar and to incorporate the learnings in your daily routines.
- * Stay away from unstructured meetings - they will be painful wastes of your time.
